BRIEF HISTORY

LOJO began its journey in August of 2001 as a garage start-up known as ENL Computing with 100% focus on technology support services. In September of 2003 the business left behind the thought of being limited as just another technology support company after recognizing the need for reliable web solution providers with integrity. Growing our progressive wings and establishing our road map, we evolved into the regional resource known as Rocklin Systems. In 2007, LOJO was recognized as a company that ranked in the top ten of the most reliable web development companies in the Western United States via a well known 3rd party research company Goldline Research (GoldlineResearch.com) In December of that same year we evolved into offering our services nationally as LOJO Group, LLC. In 2009 the business was recognized, and appeared in Forbes magazine for being a Leading Provider for Web Design in the Western United States. Our company name, LOJO, is derived from the two primary inspirations in our principals' lives, their children Logan and Jonah.
